Police Have as Few Clues to Work on as Were Found in Bobbis Franks' Case

MAID SHOT THREE TIMES

Was Hacked to Pieces in Order to Cover Identity, Authorities Declare

Chicago, Ill.—Working on clues as meagre as those that led to the arrest of the kidnapers of Bobbie Franks last year authorities Monday were hunting for the slayers of 16-year-old girl whose burned and mutilated body was found Sunday night near Chesterton, Ind.

The girl had been shot three times and her body was found burned beyond recognition at the edge of a small wood along a highway. An empty 5-gallon gasoline can stood nearby, grim testimony to the crime. A little powder box some wisps of dark brown hair, a string of beads, a pair of tortoise shell spectacles and a partially destroyed Pennsylvania railroad employee's card are the clues with which it is hoped the mystery may be solved.

LEGS SEVERED
The girl apparently had been shot where she was found. Two bullets were in her head and one in her side. Her face was badly burned as if in an attempt to completely destroy the identity of the victim.

The legs had been hacked off just below the knees and an arm was severed below the elbow—all apparently with a dull axe. Police believe the slayers fired the shots into the body and then deliberately started to destroy the identifying marks, cutting the shoes into pieces, mangling one hand, and then becoming frightened and not wanting to destroy the other hand.

The imprints of balloon automobile tires veering suddenly of the road led to the discovery of the body.

SET MAY 18 AS DATE

By Associated Press
Chicago, Ill.—William D. Shepherd charged with the murder of William Nelson McCutcheon, his foster son, from whom he inherited a $1,000,000 estate, will be tried May 18 before Judge Lynch.

The trial date was set after both sides expressed willingness to go to trial as soon as possible. Dr. C. F. Falmann upon whose confession Shepherd was indicted for murder, and a co-defendant with Shepherd, did not appear in court, although his case was set automatically with that of Shepherd.

NUDE WOMAN FOUND

Chicago, Ill.—The unclothed body of a woman identified as Miss Marie McCormack, 43, was found in a sumptuously furnished apartment in the Hyde park district early Monday. Thomas Davis, a hotel chef, who called the attention of the police to the death was held for questioning. Empty bottles and disorder in the apartment, the police said indicated death may have followed a moonshine revel.

MAN WOUNDED BY POLICE ESCAPES
FROM HOSPITAL

Minneapolis—Man, Held for Fraud, Disappears After Visit from His Family

By Associated Press
Milwaukee — Theodore Weatherby, Minneapolis, held at a hospital here for the police on a charge of fraud, escaped at 2 o'clock this morning and police announced shortly before noon that no trace of the man has been obtained.

Weatherby was captured after he had eluded the police following his arrest last Wednesday, when a corps of patrolmen opened fire, wounding him and Mrs. Ida Jaeger, a pedestrian, who was walking near central police station.

Sunday Weatherby's wife and parents visited him at the hospital. Following their visit a nurse asked Weatherby if he wanted his bed changed, but the man declined the service and it is the opinion of the police that he had a rope which he used in making his escape concealed in his room at the time.

He fled in his night clothing and hospital attendants recalled Monday morning that an automobile was heard to drive up the alley near the hospital building shortly before his absence was discovered. Police had taken precautions to see that Weatherby was tightly strapped to his bed. The restraints had been severed by a sharp instrument.

GREEK SLAYS
RICH WIDOW,
SHOOTSELF

Restaurant Man Is Cause of Double Tragedy as Wealthy Woman Refuses Suit

By Associated Press
Janesville—Thomas Coras, Greek cook and former restaurant keeper shot and killed Mrs. Edith Wilkins, 55, wealthy widow and then turned the revolver on himself and committed suicide sometime during the forenoon of Saturday. The bodies were not found until 10 o'clock Sunday morning when neighbors, aroused at the failure of the widow to appear as usual, broke into the house and found the corpses.

Coras was the Americanized name for Athanasios Corasithias who came to America in 1912 and lived for a time in Columbus where he kept a restaurant. He arrived in Janesville four years ago and met at his rooming place Mrs. Wilkins, who comes from an old and well-to-do Rock-wool family. Coras fell madly in love and from time to time has made proposals of marriage to her and threatened her if she refused. On Tuesday, April 21, she returned from California and wrote a note to Coras asking him to call.

WAS DESPONDENT
Letters from him to her while on the coast show that Mrs. Wilkins had rejected his marriage requests, and that he was very despondent.

The room where the bodies were found show evidences of a violent struggle. On the floor were seven empty cartridges. Four bullets landed in the body of Mrs. Wilkins and death was evidently instantaneous.

Coras had apparently reloaded his revolver and put the last bullet through his head.

Coras was a widower with two children in Durven, Greece, from which place he had immigrated.

THREE BILLS FOR TAX
PROBE BEFORE SOLONS

Madison—Three separate and distinct resolutions providing for the creation of interim legislative committees to investigate the entire question of taxation in Wisconsin are before the state legislature.

Two of the resolutions are the product of the anti-Blaine faction and one is purely an administrative measure differing only in the method of selection of personnel.

The Ingalls proposal known as joint resolution 58 A provides for a joint committee consisting of seven members of the assembly and four members of the senate, appointed in the manner that standing committees are appointed, to thoroughly investigate the subject of property and income tax laws. This resolution has been adopted in the assembly and now is before the committee on taxation of the senate, preparatory to recommendation and presentation to the upper body.

RACINE BANKER GETS
FOUR YEARS IN JAIL

By Associated Press
Milwaukee—W. C. Hood, Racine, former president of the American National bank of this city, was sentenced to four years imprisonment in Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $3,000 in federal court here Monday.

The sentence was passed following conviction several days ago on charges of violation of the national banking laws. Motion for a new trial was denied, and a stay of execution was granted until May 7. That appeal may be made to the circuit court of appeals.

The American National Bank failed several years ago at the same time the Union Food Stores company went out of business.

President Doubts Success
Of Ship Subsidies Scheme

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1925 by the Post Pub. Co.
Washington, D. C.—President Coolidge's thoughts on the state of the union as revealed by the White House spokesman are not turning toward ship subsidies as a way to assist the merchant marine—nor are they turning to anything else so far as affirmative indications of shipping policy is concerned.

The president hasn't seen the proposition said to have been made by General Pershing regarding financial assistance to the American merchant marine. That has been a subject that has been under consideration by congress a number of times but it never passed a bill of that kind. The president doubts very much if it can be persuaded to pass a bill of that nature now, notwithstanding the fact that our shippings costs annually—

DECORATE WORLD
FLIERS FOR FEAT

Men Who Circled Globe First to Get Peacetime Distinguished Service Medal

Washington, D. C.—Frederick L. Martin, first commander of the army world fliers expedition, and first Lieutenants Leigh Wade and Leslie P. Arnold, members of that expedition, received Monday the first distinguished service medal ever given for military services performed in time of peace.

The presentation ceremonies took place at the war department and were attended by officials representing the army, navy, state, treasury, commerce and postoffice departments. By special act of congress the medals were awarded to the eight world flight officers at the time some of their number also were made eligible for promotion in ranks, but only Major Martin and two other lieutenants were present Monday to receive the decorations.

Addressing the three fliers, Dwight Davis, acting Secretary of war, said the occasion was marked only by the absence of Secretary Weeks, and his inability on account of illness to make the presentations in person. He reminded the aviators that while the medals were small, and possessed little intrinsic value, they nevertheless were priceless.

FIND SALESMAN DEAD

No one witnessed the accident so far as is known, and the machine was wrecked so badly it was impossible what may have been the cause.

Give What You Can To Help
Pay For G. A. R. Monument

How much should I give to the fund for the monument for the burial plot of the Grand Army of the Republic? How much are the others doing?

These are questions which seem to be holding back gifts to the $2,000 fund which Oney Johnston post of the American legion is raising. The answer to these inquiries is given by Charles A. Green, chairman of the campaign, who says:

"We want everybody to give what they can. Contributions range all the way from 25 cents to $500 and the small gifts are welcome as the large ones. It is our wish that this monument should be a present to these beloved veterans of the civil war from the whole city of Appleton, not from a handful. We want everybody to give according to his means. Individuals have sent us amounts from half a dollar to twenty-five. Manufacturers have given from $10 to $50, mer-the expense above the receipts—from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 not counting depreciation.

An effort during Harding's administration to provide for a law of this kind failed. The merchant marine bill went through the house and the leaders said there were sufficient votes in the senate to pass it but it didn't come to a vote there. They decided to wait till the new election which changed the complexion of the senate in such a way that it was found the bill wouldn't pass.

The inquiry having been made as to whether the president now favored such a bill, the reply from the spokesman is that the president would want to know what the nature of the assistance was going to be and how much it was going to cost and what probably would be its effect. He was not in favor of presenting a bill for that purpose at the present time but if someone has a plan he should look at it with a great deal of interest.

Of course it must be remembered that a great many American ships are being operated—some of them at a fair return without the aid of any direct financial assistance from the United States government but it has always been thought that if one is to have an adequate merchant marine—one that would give adequate service to all parts of the country and provide sufficient merchant vessels to aid in defense in case of a national emergency—that it would be necessary to give some financial assistance by the United States government.

"SINK" SUB IN
SIEGE OF OAHU

Second Day of Naval Sham Battle Brings Aircraft and Light Cruisers Together

Honolulu—The second day of the Battle of the Oahu was marked by a notable increase in the activity of the aircraft and light cruiser forces but no major engagement has thus far occurred between the main body of the attacking fleet and the defending Black land forces now engaged in a war game of the Hawaiian islands.

Two destroyers and one mine layer of the Blue attacking fleet were sighted off Diamond head Sunday night moving eastward along the coast toward Honolulu and were fired upon by coast defense batteries.

The Ludlow, submarine tender of the defending forces, sighted the submarine S-34 of the attacking forces, 10 miles from Barber point. The S-34 was lying to on the surface.

The Ludlow immediately opened fire at close range and succeeded in theoretically sinking the S-34.

The attacking Blue forces are apparently maintaining a submarine cordon around Oahu.

NATIONS ARE
GERMAN POLL

Washington Surprised by Election, Paris Suspects Trend Toward Monarchy

Washington, D. C.—Its psychological effect outside of Germany, rather than what it may portend as a new direction in German politics, appears to be the chief concern in official circles here in viewing the triumph of Field Marshall von Hindenburg in Sunday's election.

Continued official silence on the election did not conceal Monday a reaction of surprise bordering on shock, with the generally held view that Germany has taken a step that is almost certain, for a period at least, to hinder her progress toward recuperation from the war.

Besides the suspicion which government and diplomatic observers here are known to feel will result from the Hindenburg election, particularly in France, its chief effect for Germany is expected in the result of the attending uncertainties on the attitude of financial interests on both sides of the Atlantic. It is felt that complete execution of the Dawes plan is almost certain to be still further delayed with a consequent effect on the restoration of Europe to a sound economic basis, and indirectly, on American commerce.

NOT ALARMED
There appears to be no disposition here, however, to take the alarmist view, regarded as more or less to be expected in France and other allied countries, that the election means a trend either toward militarism or monarchy in Germany. The German war hero's election is regarded primarily as evidence of a sentimental reaction to his war record.

Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee in commenting on the Hindenburg election said he did not regard it as "necessarily disturbing."

"I have no doubt," Senator Borah said, "that there will be a recrudescence of the nationalistic feeling and spirit but if that is directed along right lines it will be helpful."

"I think the outside world had better go forward on the theory that the German people had the right to elect the man they wanted and that until the facts appear otherwise that they will accommodate their energies and their efforts to right principles and policy."

UNDER SUSPICION

Senator Swanson of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the foreign relations committee, said he regarded Hindenburg's election as putting Germany "under suspicion," the only way that can be removed, he said, is for the forces that carried out the present election to indicate to a marked degree the desire for peace and repudiation of the past military attitude and ambitions of Germany.

Representative Hamilton Fish of New York, Republican member of the house foreign affairs committee, said

Washington — An intoxicated person may, if he so desires, become sober in about half an hour by the proper exercise of his lungs, Dr. Yandell Henderson, of the Sheffield Scientific school at Yale, told the national academy of science here Monday.

The only thing necessary to eliminate the alcohol from the system, he said, is to induce rapid breathing, which would clear it through the lungs.

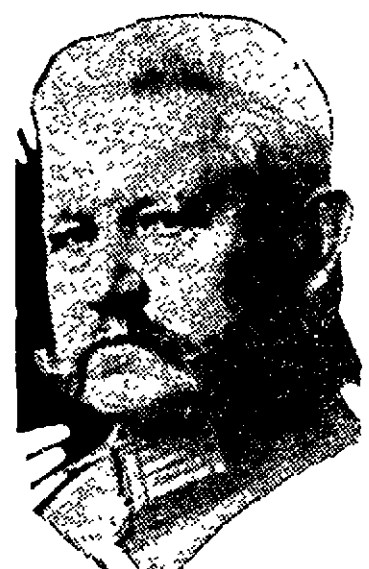

Dr. Henderson with Howard W. Haggard, also of the Sheffield school related experiments on a variety of subjects having to do with the activities of the blood stream which they said, had been found to be twice as large as formerly supposed.

Tetlow managed to keep the automobile on the road and soon found himself back on the summit of the hill, where the motor conquered the wind and the driver was able to proceed on his way.

FIVE KILLED IN MINE EXPLOSION
CAUSED BY GAS

One Man Is Blown to Bits, as Effort to Sink Shaft Ends in Failure Sunday

By Associated Press
West Newton, Pa.—Five construction workmen were killed in an explosion at the Humphrey mine of the West Moreland Coal Co. near here Sunday night. One man on the tippie when it was wrecked by the force of the blast, was blown to bits and the bodies of four others were found Monday along the slope 600 feet inside the mine.

The men killed were employed by the H. F. Stark Construction Co., in sinking a shaft and slope at the mine for the coal company.

The explosion occurred about 9:30 o'clock while four of the victims were inside slope, preparing forms into which concrete was to have been poured Monday.

The presence of "after damp" had caused the early efforts of rescue crews. With the arrival of the rescue crew from the United States bureau of mines at Pittsburgh, the work was speeded up and members of the crew emerged from the mine shortly after 4 o'clock with the announcement that the bodies had been located.

Rescue men at the scene advanced the opinion that the explosion had been caused by an accumulation of gas.

Monarchist Plurality Over Republican 886,759 Communist Lags With 1,900,000

VICTOR FAILED TO VOTE

Took No Active Part Personally in Campaign—Pledges Security to Republic

Berlin—Field Marshall von Hindenburg's "front porch" campaign, conducted from his home in Hanover, has been successful, and next week he will be inducted into office as the first popularly elected president of Germany. The first president, the late Frederick III, was named by the National assembly immediately after the revolution which established the republic, but von Hindenburg was chosen by direct vote of the people.

Running as the choice of the nationalists-conservative bloc consisting of the parties of the United-Right, he received 14,839,399 votes, or 48.3 per cent, of the total valid ballots cast in Sunday's polling, he obtained a plurality of 856,759 over his principal opponent, former Chancellor Dr. Wilhelm Marx, candidate of the Republican bloc, who received 13,752,640 votes. Ernst Thaelmann, Communist, trailed with 1,931,591.

The race was close from the start, the two chief candidates running neck to neck almost until the official count. Dr. Marx, backed by the Centrists, Democrats and Socialists, conducted a whirlwind campaign on the American plan, delivering several scheduled addresses daily as well as speaking from the rear platform of his train when occasion offered.

DIDN'T VOTE
Von Hindenburg took little active personal part in the fight, and did not even vote himself, but his supporters were busy everywhere waging a strenuous campaign. His most important speech was delivered before a great gathering of Nationalists at Hanover when he denied that he represented reaction or that his candidacy was inimical to the republic.

His only other public utterance of significance was a final appeal, broadcast by radio Friday night. On that occasion the grizzled war veteran who has spent his life in the military service of the fatherland, made this statement:

"I affirm before the whole world that it has always been my holiest endeavor to prevent new horrors of war and to help to the utmost the victims of past wars. This aim can best be attained by unity, and to serve our people as leader in this sense will be my holiest task."

IS NON-COMMITTAL

When questioned by the Associated Press during the progress of the campaign as to his attitude on the Dawes reparations plan the field marshal stated that only the future could show whether the scheme was capable of fulfillment.

"Germany," he asserted, "will not be able to fulfill the conditions unless the foreign power participating in the pact evince political and economic loyalty."

The women's votes and the heavy turnout of former stay-at-homes are believed to have been responsible for his victory over such a seasoned political campaigner as Dr. Marx.

Dr. Marx' supporters also freely admit that anti-Catholic feeling militated strongly against their candidate's prospect.

The Reichstag will reconvene next Tuesday and Von Hindenburg, if he follows established custom, will have the Republican oath administered to him some time during the week by the Socialist reichstag president, Paul Loebe. In the presence of parliament in which he probably has more opponents than supporters, as the Centrists, Democrats, Socialists and Communists command 277 seats against 215 for the rightists.

Early voting was the rule in Berlin and the crush at many of the polling places was an event. The violent encounters at times broke out and the police were busily occupied in separating the fighters.

More serious trouble occurred at Karlsruhe where two persons were killed and a number wounded in a clash between Republicans and Nationalists.

EFFECTS MARKET

Berlin—The election of Field Marshall von Hindenburg to the German presidency reacted unfavorably on the bourse Monday, many of the industrials dropping 2 to 5 points on account of a feeling of insecurity with respect to the immediate political effect and the adverse editorial comment beginning to come in from abroad.

NATIONS UNEASY OVER ELECTION IN GERMANY

he was certain that so far as the attitude either of the American government or American bankers was concerned, the election would "not make an iota of difference."

PARIS UNEASY
Paris—News of the election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg as president of Germany was received here with a certain amount of uneasiness although it was felt that there was little to choose between him and the other principal candidate, Dr. Marx, the field marshal is believed to represent in a greater degree the spirit of war revenge than his civilian opponent.

The result arrived too late to permit of extended editorial comment, and what there is appears colored by the party affiliations of the respective papers and to a certain extent prepared before the event.

L'Ere Nouvelle, organ of the cartel of the left, declares that von Hindenburg's expressed pacifism can deceive no one, that he is an enemy of world peace, in the opinion of James W. Gerard former ambassador to Germany.

Mr. Gerard Monday characterized the election as a flat declaration by the German people of a return to militarism and monarchism.

STREET BOSS IS NEEDED TO SAVE MONEY FOR CITY

Street Department Only 50
Per Cent Efficient, Mayor
Goodland Says

"The street department of this city is not much more than 50 per cent efficient," Mayor John Goodland Jr. declared last night, repeating the statement he made when the new city council was organized. "The present system of having the city engineer also do the work of street commissioner is a survival of the commission form of government here. But under the commission form the engineer was street commissioner in name only, one of the three commissioners doing the actual work. A department that handles from $100,000 to $150,000 annually is too much of a load for one man to carry, and I expect the common council will save the taxpayers thousands of dollars annually by appointing a commissioner to head the street department."

LAY OUT WORK
In response to an inquiry how this saving would be effected the mayor said that under the present system there was no one to give his entire attention to planning and laying out the work of the departmental employees. Left almost entirely to their own devices, the mayor said, the workmen and teamsters often neglected their work, which has resulted in considerable waste of time. "A competent commissioner," Mr. Goodland stated, "would be at hand constantly to see that the work is done for dollar of their labor, and in that way alone would save the city more than his salary."

"Under the present system," he continued, "we don't know where the street department's funds are going. Sewers and water mains are dug in the streets and often filled in imperfectly. Then when repairs become necessary, the money is drawn from the general fund instead of being charged to whoever dug the trench, because the engineer has all he can do as city engineer without keeping a check on every job done on the streets."

A street commissioner, the mayor said, would keep a careful check on all the work and repairs necessary to keep the streets in order, and the cost of such work would be put upon the proper person or department, thus effecting another great saving.

AVOID POLITICS
The common council will choose a commissioner as soon as possible. Mayor Goodland went on, and until that time the city engineer will have to carry his double load as best he can, with the assistance of the street and bridge committee. This committee is composed of aldermen who have their own private businesses to look after, he said, but under the present system they are forced to neglect their private interests for those of the city.

The mayor said that he was radically opposed to the entrance of politics in the choice of a street commissioner. He expressed a desire to see a man selected with sufficient skill to plan all street work and with the experience necessary to direct the efforts of a considerable number of laborers, and said that only if a man of those qualifications is appointed will the change be successful.

U. S. Court Gets Indian's Claim To Share In Log Fund

Menominee Indians of mixed blood residing in this vicinity probably will know by May 4 whether they are entitled to per capita payments from the States treasury on the same basis as the Menominee residing on the reservations, according to Ebon R. Minahan of Green Bay, one of the attorneys for the plaintiffs, who expects a District of Columbia to be handed down on that date.

The matter was argued in the court of appeals, April 8, before Chief Justice Martin and Associate Justices Robb and Van Orsdal, and since it is the practice of the court of appeals to hand down decision on the first Monday of each month on matters argued during the previous month, a decision in this matter is expected on May 4, it is said. The case was brought about in the name of Alexander Besaw.

About 500 Menominee Indians and their descendants living in the original territory which extends from Lake

Winnipeg, to Marinette will be affected directly by the decision in this case. All of these persons have been prevented from receiving their per capita payment from the fund simply because they chose to adopt the customs of the white man and live on their original home site rather than on the reservation.

The chief legal reason for declining to permit the Indians of mixed blood to participate in the payments from the log fund in that they shared in a per capita division of an item of $40,000 under the treaty of 1848. There is no clause in this treaty, however, that says that this payment shall be final and none that expressly excludes them from future payments. Under previous treaties with the Stockbridge Indians and with the Winnebagoes, it is obvious that some of the treaties with the Indians state specifically that the settlement shall be final, while some others do not make this specific provision and the Indians have received subsequent payments under such agreements.

EVERY CHILD IN SCHOOL HAS PERFECT TEETH

The first rural school in Outagamie county in which every pupil had perfect teeth was discovered Friday by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, when she visited Islandville school in the town of Dale. Miss Klein arrived just in time, as the school closed Friday afternoon.

Every pupil had his teeth repaired last fall before school started and has kept them in good condition since, setting the county record. Miss Klein expects several more schools to reach this standard next year.

After supporting herself and two small children for three years by her own efforts, Elsie Colvin was given a decree of absolute divorce and $10 a week alimony from her husband, George Colvin, when she appeared before Judge A. M. Spencer in municipal court. She also received the custody of the two children.

The couple was married in Appleton on August 15, 1916 and have two sons, John, 7 and Carlton, 5. The complaint alleges that Colvin gave the plaintiff only $12 in the last three years and that he was unable to hold a job for any length of time.

Badgers Seventh In Knitted Goods

Sixty-six Knitting Establishments in Wisconsin, Survey Shows

Washington, D. C.—Wisconsin ranked seventh among the states in the number of knit goods establishments, the department of commerce announced today. The figures were obtained in the 1923 manufactures census, and have just been compiled.

The value of knit goods by states was not announced, but for the entire country establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of knit goods reported products valued at $348,176,734, an increase of 33.8 per cent as compared with 1921, the last preceding census year.

Of this total, $378,732,878 was represented by hosiery, $160,901,752 by underwear, $197,158,178 by fancy knit goods (sweaters, jerseys, bath suits, scarfs and shawls, headwear, neckties, gloves, mittens etc.), $68,520,578 by knit cloth for sale as such, and $42,862,348 by minor products, including work done on contract.

All these groups of products show substantial increases as compared with 1921.

Of the 2,323 establishments reporting for 1923, there were 886 in New York, 610 in Pennsylvania, 199 each in New Jersey and North Carolina, 87 in Massachusetts, 72 in Tennessee, 66 in Wisconsin, 64 in Illinois, 59 in Ohio, 30 in California, 29 in each Georgia and Michigan, 25 in Connecticut, 22 in Rhode Island, 18 each in Minnesota and New Hampshire, 13 in Indiana, 12 in South Carolina, 11 in each in Utah and Virginia, 9 in

Only Delcol Benzol Can Give You Real Benzol Performance

IN JUSTICE to yourself, to your car, and incidentally, to the finest fuel that ever went into a motor, don't form an opinion of Benzol performance until you've tried what you KNOW is Delcol.

The Benzol used to create the Delcol blend of Benzol-Gasoline is from the ONLY uniformly pure Benzol supply in America. Not only that—but it's practically ALL there is!

Motor Benzol, as used and recommended by Henry Ford Rolls-Royce Franklin and the governments of United States, France and England, demands:

- 1—A pure, sulphur-free Benzol.
- 2—A high-grade, straight run gasoline.
- 3—Perfect BLENDING (not merely pouring together) in a proper proportion—rich enough in Benzol to really do the job.

Using less Benzol, impure Benzol, lower-test gasoline, or an imperfect blending, cannot result in an improved motor fuel.

That's why ONLY Delcol can give you real Benzol performance.

Insist on DELCOL motor Benzol—the fuel that's kind to your motor. There's a DeBaufer Filling Station right in the heart of the city—turn in and fill.

A STREET COMMISSIONER FOR APPLETON

The city of Appleton is about to engage in an extensive street improvement program. Probably $150,000.00 will be expended this year on Appleton streets for new paving and repairs. This is a gigantic undertaking, and one which requires the most careful direction and supervision. No private concern would think of expending such a sum for extensions or improvements without engaging experienced and competent inspectors and supervisors. The city should be just as careful in expending the taxpayers' money, and we believe that the city council would show wise business judgment if it were to engage a street commissioner whose duty it would be to devote his entire time to the supervision of our street improvements under the direction, of course, of our city engineer and street and bridge committee of the city council.

Heretofore this work has been handled by the city engineer, but we do not believe that this official can carefully and properly supervise all details of extensive street improvement and at the same time efficiently and properly attend to the regular duties of his position. These duties require the surveying, planning and direction of all city improvements, including sewers, water lines, etc. It is too much to ask of any one man and it is too much to expect that he can take care of all of these duties and still supervise the details of street paving and repairs.

We believe that a competent street commissioner can be engaged at a salary of $2500.00 a year, or less, and that such an expenditure would be saved several times by efficient direction and supervision of our street improvements. We hope that the council will see fit to engage such a man before it starts its extensive paving program. The selection should, of course, be made on the qualifications of ability and experience, and not based on political expediency.

WHEELERS ACQUITTAL

Senator Wheeler has been found not guilty on the charge that he unlawfully used his senatorial influence before the department of interior in behalf of a Montana oil client. The evidence against Senator Wheeler was circumstantial. Aside from the question as to just what he did or did not do, as to what he did or did not say, that bore directly on the issue of guilt or innocence, was the larger question of motive. It was possible that Senator Wheeler might have used his influence in aid of a client in a manner that was a technical violation of law and that, on the other hand, was not at all intentional. He might have done so in ignorance as to just what the law required of him, or he might have done it unwittingly. Whatever the real facts, he is cleared of any criminal motive.

We think the decision of the jury, which was prompt, will be viewed with satisfaction by the public. Everyone hoped that Senator Wheeler would be cleared, except possibly those who are embittered against him personally or politically. Whether the charges originally brought against him were the result of a political conspiracy, as has been charged, is a matter about which there will be difference of opinion. Undoubtedly the government, after the case was developed, proceeded in good faith.

There is of course a great deal of questionable use of influence at Washington. At times it becomes criminal, but in the main it is simply an employment of power or position for rewarding the faithful and conferring favors upon those from whom favors have been received or are expected. It is the "game of politics" universally played. Probably Senator Wheeler went no further than many other senators or office-holders in Washington habitually go in such situations. He is to be congratulated on his vindication; and the senate as well. It is to be assumed that the indictment of the senator in the District of Columbia will be dropped.

THEY ONLY SEEM BUSY

What will the busybodies do for a simile now that the department of agriculture has exposed as a canard the story about the "busy bee"? Since the day of the first naturalist the honey bee has enjoyed the reputation of being a go-getter. In fact the bee has been synonymous with bustling business, even to the extent that bustling persons, who glory in impressing others with the plural number and superlative importance of their affairs, prefer to liken themselves unto the "busy bee" that doth improve each shining hour."

If it were not generally known that the department of agriculture does not traffic in satirical figures of speech some might suspect the startling exposure of the apiary as an attempt at personification. Might not the department personnel at Washington have succumbed to levity on this one occasion and intended that they are the human "busy bees" who are not as busy as they seem to be?

Let he who is without indolence cast the first stone at the poor Apidae as they buzz from hive to flower and flower to have divested of their ancestral and honored surname, "Busy." At least the agricultural experts have not accused the bee of intent to perpetrate a fraud. If man has drawn an erroneous inference from the activities of the bee, that is his fault. It is on this point that the case of the human "busy bee" differs. The human species makes a vain show of busyness without being actually busy.

The department of agriculture has shown to all that among men and the lower animals those who seem the busiest do not always get the most accomplished.

USING FACTS

"We are the most powerful sex," Ida Clyde Clarke, magazine editor, told the League of Women Voters at their convention. "Man is not crazy about doing anything. He is just crazy, to find out things. If the League can get hold of the information he has uncovered in his mad rush to investigate, but has never used, it can do a wonderful work in molding public opinion."

This is interesting. Also a bit confusing. It acknowledges man's spirit of scientific curiosity, which is admittedly stronger than woman's, but denies the possession by men of something on which they have always prided themselves—practical use of the scientific facts they uncover. Many a husband or father or brother will talk by the hour, in mingled pity and indignation, of the things he has found out about household efficiency, for example, and has tried in vain to get his women folks to put into practice.

"The chief mental difference between men and women," says one male philosopher, "is that women learn less from their own experience." "Also less from other peoples," adds a more cynical philosopher. But maybe such critics are wrong. Maybe it is women who are the practical sex, more prompt than men to put available knowledge to common use. If so, they have plenty of opportunity in politics and elsewhere. For the world is full of stored truth that is rusty and dusty from neglect, and very easy for an active woman to get at in her new job of housecleaning a "man-made world."

NAMES

After all, aren't we people a right funny lot? We never quite pleased with the names that we've got. Objections we feel may be all Tommy-rot, but we all feel the same as to names, like as no.

Marie would rather her name had been Pearl, for Pearl seems to fit just her type of a girl. And Lilly and Hazel, if pinned to the ground, they wish they were Gertrude and Ruth.

The feelings of fellows run on just the same. They never quite pleased with their own given name. If Ernest had chosen when he was a boy, he wouldn't be Ernest but Arthur, or Roy.

With names that are common, like Mary and Grace, the owners wish odd ones had taken their place. And those that are odd like Theresa and June, to folks who are called them, seem way out of tune.

Can any one tell why we make such a fuss, over names that our parents have handed to us? It's you, not your name, that will carry you far. Don't worry 'bout WHO, but about WHAT you are.

POISONING FROM MERCURY OINTMENT

The popular misapprehension of the effects of exposure to cold and wet is based mainly upon the necessary rather than coincidental coincidence of some illness or indisposition shortly after the alleged exposure. The absurdity, unhealthfulness and actual danger involved in the serious acceptance on this myth, which is still urged upon the laity by certain physicians and health officers are becoming more and more apparent to enlightened people. It must be a source of some anxiety and uneasiness to the old fogey doctors and the politically fortunate health officers who still maintain that folks do take cold, that the more careless or reckless folks do come about exposure the less prevalent are the very diseases which these reactionaries would have us associate with exposure. You see, there is some chance that the younger laity may notice that fact and begin to wonder how come. To me it is a satisfaction to recall that only five years ago when I wished to purchase oxfords in the winter time I could not find them in a big city shoe store—they did not keep them in stock at that season of the year because there was no demand; today in the same store they sell practically nothing else in winter. The old fogey doctors and health officers of three or four big cities I could name ought to get together and try to dissuade the shoe merchants from contributing to this reckless exposure. The health officers of two or three cities I have named ought to get out bulletins warning the men of the dire dangers of exposing their ankles—of course the women have long since proved that such teachings is just bunk.

But let us get on with the mercury poisoning. The foregoing observation was suggested by the parallel misapprehension of absorption of various medicaments, foods or poisons thru the skin. I find there are quite a lot of poorly educated doctors who still entertain the notion that certain medicaments or poisons are actually absorbed through the unbroken skin. This is not so remarkable when we consider how many of the same caliber still believe in the foolishness about taking cold. Dr. Jeanette M. Sheffield of Fall River, reports an interesting case of mercury poisoning from the application of mercury ointment to the skin. A Greek waiter was admitted to the hospital with the characteristic symptoms of mercury poisoning, yet he insisted he had not been sick, and had not taken any medicine for a long time. Finally, however, an intern obtained from the patient the information that the patient had sought the advice of a drug clerk a few days before entering the hospital, in regard to large or hospital size body lice with which he was infested and the drug clerk had accommodated him by the law by prescribing and selling to the simple Greek three ounces of mercury ointment. The Greek took a hot bath that night, applied nearly all of the ointment, and got into bed, covering his head with the bedclothing. The following day the symptoms of mercury poisoning occurred. Of course the Greek had not associated the use of the ointment with taking medicine, so he did not mean to deceive the doctors in the hospital.

Now a thoughtless or careless reader might assume that this was an instance of mercury poisoning from absorption through the skin. Dr. Sheffield entertained no such notion. She remarks in concluding her report: "He probably inhaled enough mercury" to produce the poisoning.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Teachers' Names Off

I am a country school teacher and would like to have some material you can suggest on sex instruction. Some of my boys and girls are entirely ignorant of the subject. Their ages are about 13 to 16. (S. M.)

Answer.—Unless by special request of the parent, a teacher should not attempt to give such instruction. Your best intentions are too likely to meet with disapproval. This is a disgrace to what purports to be liberal education, but you are an earnest young teacher and I warn you to follow the easy path which has been beaten by the great army to which you belong. Certainly your boys and girls need such instruction. But the school authorities do not look at it that way. Nor do the parents in general. Even if the school authorities and the parents wished the children to be properly instructed along that line, the teacher who attempts it should have special training for that branch of teaching, for it is a most difficult and delicate art. ## Swimming Is Art Of Skill To Animals

L. E. Eubanks In Our Dumb Animals.

Nearly all large animals are better swimmers than man. With our flat palms, we can outstrip many of the small-footed running quadrupeds, but the big animals have us beaten when it comes to swimming. Anthropoid apes because of their build, are commonly believed to swim as well as man, but the fact is that they cannot swim at all unless taught by trainers. And that reminds me of another interesting fact along the same line. Fur seals cannot swim when first born they are actually afraid of the water, and have to learn. But once they have mastered the art, they soon forget to walk.

The rhinoceros and the hippopotamus are both good swimmers, and the latter is one of the very best divers. The reindeer is at home in the water, as shown by his method of deep submersion—he keeps his head but a little above the surface. The elk carries his head well out of water and avoids turning; he likes to go directly from bank to bank and get it over quickly.

The Indian elephant must be a powerful swimmer, to judge by the surprising burdens he carries across great rivers. It takes both strength and skill to swim when heavily loaded.

The polar bear is a marvel in the water. He is not the swiftest of swimmers, but considering the icy temperature of the water and remembering that cold is a great deterrent in swimming, this animal must surely be the hardest and most enduring of "water dogs," for he can swim 20 or 25 miles with but moderate effort.

The squirrel is still another surprise, when it comes to swimming. I read of a sportsman who experimented to learn whether these little animals swim naturally. He selected one that had been born and raised in captivity, and took it in a boat to the center of a lake. The instant the squirrel was liberated it made for the shore, and it swam so rapidly that the man had much difficulty to recapture it.

PROFESSOR SHERMAN'S DILEMMA

MA

In connection with the publication of Sinclair Lewis' "Arrowsmith" Ernest Boyd has made a curiously telling observation. It is well known that Stuart P. Sherman, writer, critic, editor and former professor of English, is an almost fanatical worshipper of what he calls the art of Sinclair Lewis. He has written magazine articles about Lewis that have been collected by Lewis publishers in pamphlet form for free distribution and he seldom lets an opportunity pass to assert that Lewis is the important American novelist today.

It is equally well known that H. L. Mencken thinks very highly of Sinclair Lewis. Mencken is not quite as unrestrained in his praise of Lewis as is Sherman but that is only natural. Mencken is never unreservedly enthusiastic about anyone, with the single exception perhaps of Theodore Dreiser. What he says about Lewis is warm enough in approval to satisfy anyone who knows the Mencken way writing. His regard for the author of "Main Street" is very great.

THEY DIFFER

Once more, it is very well known that Sherman and Mencken stand for two diametrically opposite points of view in literature, in ethics, in life. They have been breaking literary lances on each other those many years, Sherman stands for what he calls "the American tradition" in literature and has written a book on that subject. Mencken stands for exactly the opposite and has written several books about his point of view. Sherman almost every other day calls Mencken all the uncomplimentary names he can think of and Mencken repays Sherman with compound interest.

So here is a curious phenomenon, Ernest Boyd points out. Both these men praise Lewis in spite of the fact that Lewis subject matter is such that the deepest convictions of both are involved, so that one of them must be talking through his hat.

Boyd comes to the conclusion that it is Sherman who does just that. That Mencken should praise Lewis, he says, is natural. Mencken's and Lewis points of view are essentially the same; both are always and invariably hitting the "American tradition" with resounding whacks. But how can the apostle of the "American tradition" praise the one novelist who attacking that tradition with all the gifts at his command?

Boyd does not undertake to say that Prof. Sherman's estimate of Lewis is necessarily wrong. He merely points out that it is illogical. He is not passing judgment on Lewis as a novelist but on the standards of judgment of two diametrically opposed critics.

NOT SO DEEP

But the mystery is not deep as appears at first glance, provided we are willing to take human nature into consideration and does not insist on mathematically exact standards of judgement in criticism. It is well known to all that our emotions cannot invariably affect judgement. You approve of what a man does, not because you carefully weigh whether his acts square with your ethical conceptions but because you like him. You are constantly engaged in the job of putting the best possible construction on the acts of one you like, of being a little blind to the things he does you don't approve of.

And critics are merely men and they carry human nature over into their criticism. What Boyd says about Prof. Sherman is entirely just and it was justifiable in a literary controversy. He had a right to do his best to put Sherman into a hole. But it seems plain that Sherman is fond of Lewis for some reason or other, perhaps personal, perhaps not. Given such a liking, it is easy and quite in keeping with the illogic of human nature to find in anything Lewis writes added reasons for admiring him and to overlook the fact that his stuff does not square with "the American tradition."

A great deal of criticism is like that—an attempt to justify the critic's liking for the writer he praises. It is unreasonable to expect logic in human likes and dislikes.

Nation's Traits Are Told By Drink

From The Pastionate Adventure. By Frank Stanton.

Beer is apt to make a young man maudlin, where champagne would induce recklessness and whiskey would stimulate crime. Perhaps our British partiality for soporifics is largely due to our national stimulant, just as the French cold-blooded logic and clear-sightedness is the result of the health-giving light wine, and the Scottish take-it-or-leave-it attitude can be traced to whiskey.

Do not the potent spirits of the east stimulate dreams and, with unsteady legs and clear brain, lead to subtlety of thought and kind of "hurry"? Does not Mr. Tuxenfoot, bring across materialism in his train, the tea-drinking of Australia lead to dyspepsia and aggressiveness, the coffee-swilling of Scandinavia induce slow thinking and pessimism, the result of poisoned kidneys and injured liver?

Can it be denied that the diet of a country is largely responsible for that nation's policy? If the English drank light wine and renowned beer, they would be irresistible. If the French took to British beer, they would cease to lead civilization; if the Scotch went dry, they would become religious fanatics; if the boche drank nothing but China tea, he would become a candidate for the Geneva experiment. Far wiser would it be for reformers to change a nation's drink instead of prohibiting it. They would earn the gratitude of the student of cause and effect.

of Founding

Kaukauna—Appropriate ceremonies in celebration of the one hundredth and sixth anniversary of Odd Fellowship were held Saturday evening and Sunday evening by the Odd Fellow and Rehekah lodges of this city. About 80 members were entertained Saturday evening in Odd Fellow hall with a program of music, talks and singing after which dancing was in order. Sunday evening the two lodges attended services in a body in First Congregational church.

The meeting Saturday evening was opened with a song by the group and a prayer by the Rev. Daniel Woodward. Selections by a quartet composed of Owen Killo; D. J. Killo; S. C. Anderson and Lyle E. Webster were followed by the address by the Rev. E. L. Worthman who said the Odd Fellows lodge performs an important function in ministering to humanity that the church cannot perform. He also stated the lodge is the handmate of the church in its teachings and in its associations with Christian movements.

After another selection by the quartet talks were given by several members from the Odd Fellows and Rehekah organizations. A group of selections was played on a piano-accompanied by Mike Miller after which dancing provided entertainment.

Sunday evening about 75 Odd Fellows and Rehekahs marched to First Congregational church in a body to attend the annual anniversary service. The choir rendered an anthem and C. S. Webster and Olaf Olson sang two duets. The Rev. E. L. Worthman read the scripture with comment on the important sections of the lessons, and offered prayer.

The address "Odd Fellowship—Entering Upon a New Era of Activity" was given by the Rev. Daniel Woodward who stated the local lodge had entered upon an important forward movement as indicated by the fact that the lodge has received a class of 14 members and has brought it through all the degrees in the last two months.

He pointed out the vast changes which had come to this nation since the lodge was organized in America 106 years ago and in the world in the past 200 years since the Odd Fellowship was organized in England. He said the present new arrangement of receiving young men at 18 years of age will do for Odd Fellowship what the DeMolay order has done for Freemasonry. The moral and patriotic movements of the fraternity and its relief work were commented upon. Mr. Woodward said the lodge stood for the Bible and its teachings of an upright moral life and its spiritual teachings of immortality and eternal life as indicated in their funeral ritual. He said these things had made Odd Fellowship one of the strongest fraternities in America.

SLATER LEAVES RAIL SHOPS AT END OF MONTHMaster Mechanic Retires on Pension After 53 Years of Service

Kaukauna—On Friday, May 1, Frank Slater, division master mechanic of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway system, will be honorably retired from service under full pension after having faithfully served the company for fifty-three years and six months. Mr. Slater will reach his seventieth birthday anniversary on Tuesday, April 28. So far as is known Mr. Slater is the only master mechanic on the system who has ever reached 70 years of age to be pensioned.

Mr. Slater has served as master mechanic for 27 years. He has served in that capacity with his office at the Kaukauna shops for 13 years. He was first appointed to that position on the peninsula division at Escanaba, Mich. That Mr. Slater has made friends and has won the respect and love of all railroad men was demonstrated Saturday evening, April 18, when approximately 250 shoppmen and officials attended a banquet in his honor in Elk hall.

Mr. Slater entered the employ of the Northwestern railroad in 1868 as machinist apprentice in the Chicago shops. His pay was 5 cent per hour. On Feb. 1, 1882 he was promoted to the position of general foreman of the Milwaukee Lake Shore and Western, then located at Manitowish. The road was later taken over by the Northwestern system and Mr. Slater was transferred to Kaukauna in 1884 when the local shops were established.

On February 1, 1895 Mr. Slater was taken to the Chicago shops where he was retained as general foreman and in 1898 he was made master mechanic of the peninsula division at Escanaba, Mich. He was sent in the same capacity to Kaukauna on Oct. 12, 1912.

When Mr. Slater entered the service only small engines were in use and the air brakes were unknown. The locomotives were stopped by means of handbrakes which were so unreliable that the trains often were not stopped until they had left the station a long distance behind.

MOVE ELECTRIC POLE
OUT OF GARAGE'S WAY

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—The local electric crew moved a large light pole on Wolf River-ave. half a block east from S. Pearl-st. Sunday morning. The pole was moved because it was an obstruction to the new driveway in the new Harzer garage, now under construction. It was set over about eight feet.

The job, which was done while the local plant furnished the city with power, was a dangerous one, on account of the high voltage wires of the Wisconsin Traction, Heat, Light and Power Co. Several more poles will be moved in the near future.

OF LOGS AFLOATCrowd Gets "Thrill" Over
What May Be Last Sight of Primitive Navigation

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—A large raft, composed of 250 huge logs, which will be used as telephone poles, was made in this city during the past week, by a crew of men working for C. W. Cornwall, local electrician and was started down the Wolf river on Sunday afternoon for Fremont, a distance of about 30 miles.

The logs were put together in three rafts, three logs deep, each raft being about 40x30 feet, and finally fastened together into one large raft. A crew of six men managed the raft on its trip, which will take two complete days.

A large telephone pole with a plank attached to its end, served as a ruder, while the rest of the crew manned pole-poles to guard the raft from going aground.

It has been years since a large raft of logs such as this one has been floated down the Wolf river. Although the logs did not draw much water, they took up considerable space, and probably will mark the last time that the river will be used for heavy navigation in this district. About 500 spectators lined the bridges and banks to watch the raft "take off" and not a few of them got quite a thrill.

New Tube Doesn't Need 'A' Battery

Scientists Working on Radio
Tube That Will Work on Lighting Current

Pittsburg, Pa.—A new tube that goes away with the filament and works directly from the electric light system is being developed in the F. S. McCullough Laboratories at Wilkingsburg, near here.

F. S. McCullough, who is working on this innovation, has invented several other types of tubes for transmission and reception. One of his transmitting tubes is rated at 10,000 watts and is water cooled in an elastic porcelain jacket.

McCullough's new receiving tube uses a heater wire outside in place of the filament. This wire gets its electricity from the ordinary house alternating current.

Thus McCullough says the A-battery can be eliminated. If a B-battery eliminator is also used, the entire receiver can be operated without batteries.

He has been testing his tube under all sorts of conditions for the past year, and he says he will continue perfecting it for another year before putting it on the market. Even today, McCullough claims wonderful results from it.

It is a good oscillator and amplifier, he says and is about four times as powerful as the ordinary tube. Yet it is silent in operation, with not a hint of the alternating current hum.

Another McCullough development is the same tube in connection with radio frequency amplifiers of the tuned and untuned type. This amplification system is built in close contact with the tube, causing extremely short leads to plates and grid and resulting in high efficiency. McCullough is experimenting further on this combination radio amplifier and tube.

"The Fatal Mistake," at the New Bijou Theatre today and Tuesday is of the type of thrill story that appeals to audiences at all times. Eva Novak and William Fairbanks play the leading parts in this story which is billed as an incident in the life of a go-getter reporter. It has to do with the young reporter's first scoop which turned out to be a flop in that the picture which no one else had ever been able to get and which he thought he had was of another person. The consequent loss of his job and his meeting with the girl of the photo make him sure that he will get the real picture and the story is the attempt. An element of mystery enters and he picks up the trail of a big jewel robbery in which the girl plays a large part. The final denouement builds itself into a big action climax with a thrilling capture after a desperate struggle in an automobile going at breakneck speed.

WHERE DOES "THE PASSING SHOW" GET ITS GIRLS

Every time a New York Winter Garden production comes to this city, such as "The Passing Show," which the Messrs. Shubert will present at the Fischer's Appleton on May 20, people wonder where all the pretty girls come from.

The Winter Garden companies make use of about 100 girls in each "Passing show." However, it is not necessary to put "want ads" in the paper when Shubert directors start work on a new Winter Garden production. Aspirants for positions in the Winter Garden choruses come from every section of the world, and there is always a long list of young girls who are waiting for their first opportunity to convince a director that they are pretty enough and sufficiently talented to claim a place in a "Passing Show" chorus.

Before any of these girls can be used in a production however, it is necessary for them to go through a three-months course in the Winter Garden ballet school. No matter how pretty she is a girl is never allowed to step on the Winter Garden stage until she has passed through the ballet training school. If she can't learn to dance, but can wear clothes, she may become a show-girl, but show-girls have little or no future before them on the stage. It is the ballet girls who later become musical comedy stars.

MEMORIALIZE CONGRESS TO DRAFT WEALTH IN WAR

Madison—Adoption of the Ueber resolution memorializing congress to propose a constitutional amendment to permit the drafting of wealth in time of war has been recommended by the assembly judiciary committee.

The resolution is similar to one adopted by the Massachusetts legislature. Assemblyman John W. Eber, Milwaukee, the author said.

Drafting of wealth in time of war would prevent abuses common during the last war and would keep men from making 200,000 per cent as was done during the recent war. Assemblyman William Coleman, Milwaukee, declared before the committee.

"If it is fair to conscript young men who are often the source of support of families, it is fair to conscript wealth," Mr. Coleman said, "and further, the policy of drafting wealth would tend to prevent dollar diplomacy."

Mrs. Charles E. Rosa, Madison, appeared in favor of the measure on behalf of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, and said that she believed that a measure of the type proposed would be an agency for the prevention of war and that it "would do away with the desires of a good many to go to war if they knew that the wealth and materials they dealt with were to be conscripted in the event of war."

ROTARIANS AT HOME WILL HAVE LUNCHEON

GAS TAX ASSURES MORE FEDERAL AID

State Highways Came Through Winter in Good Shape, Road Engineer Says

Madison—Federal aid work in highway construction will be speeded up as the result of the early enactment of the gasoline tax, J. A. Donaghey, state highway engineer, announced today.

"Under the provisions of the act, all proceeds of the gasoline tax resulting from sales made prior to July 1 will be available to match federal aid, and preparations are being made as rapidly as possible to get construction and maintenance work of the federal aid type under way," Mr. Donaghey said. "It is thought that it will be possible to execute about $2,500,000 federal aid as a result of this early enactment than would otherwise have been the case."

"The highway construction program for 1925 will not be as large as in some other years in the past, however, largely because the county bond issues which have been responsible for large construction programs in several counties in 1922 and 1923 have largely been expended. Maintenance work will continue on substantially the same scale as in previous years."

Highways throughout the state for the most part have come through the winter in good shape, Mr. Donaghey said.

"There are a number of bad spots in some of the trunk lines," he added, "but a week or ten days more of good weather and a good rain will bring out all the frost and do away with most of the frost boils existing at the present time."

Patrolmen are reported to be out in all counties, while in some they have been working for three weeks or longer and have helped very much to improve the roads generally. Lack of rain during March permitted the road to leave the ground without disturbing road conditions as much as in former years, it was said.

Break Silence And Teach Sex Truths, Says Pastor

Boys and girls of today are abandoned too much to the impure talk of the street and the talked talk of blazoned companions, declared Dr. H. E. Penabody, pastor of the First Congregational church in his sermon Sunday morning on the subject, Our Ruling Passions. The pastor appealed to his parishioners to silence against the conspiracy of blazoned talk which has gripped the country and do their duty to instruct the young concerning sex love.

"Our human passions are commonly supposed to be evil," said Dr. Penabody. "But that is not true. They are sometimes evil and sometimes good. They are more often good than evil. Our passions do rule us, however. It is natural that they should and right that they should. In saying that, it is very important to remember that our passion for God is the best thing to be our strongest passion."

"THINK THROUGH" MONEY Reference also was made to the passion for money, the most in evidence in our lives. The passion for power is back of this motive, because it is often said that money is power. "I believe we think too little about money," he said. "Instead of too much. That is, we do not think enough of what a tremendous engine it is to serve our higher interests, our ultimate life-interests. Most of us haven't thought the thing through yet. One of those higher life-interests is love."

"There has unhappily fallen upon our American communities in the last few generations a 'conspiracy of silence,' as to honest instruction about the uses, the dangers and the sacredness of this God-given passion of sex love. We have been abandoning our boys and girls to the impure talk of the street and the talked talk of blazoned companions, without any serious instruction either from home or church or school. We have been leaving a vacuum here in the minds and hearts of our boys and girls, and nature abhors a vacuum. Human nature will not endure it and therefore a wave of frankness, often brutal frankness in such matters, is sweeping over the land, coming from entirely different quarters. It taints our theaters with salacious suggestions, it crowds the pages of the modern novel and our newspapers. It urges our young people to dangerous license of speech and conduct, until in some quarters solicitation to immoral conduct comes from girls as well as from boys."

"These dangers which all of us deplore are vastly greater because of ignorance—ignorance for which the young people are not to blame, the schools, and above all, the parents, are to blame. We parents as a whole have been moral cowards with our own children. Lazy cowards because we would not take the trouble nor spend the money for the materials of instruction, which can be obtained by any parent who is really in earnest in this matter. We have not cooperated with our pastors, nor our teachers nor sought their help except in cases of extremity. And then we have blamed everybody but ourselves, upon whom God has laid the chief responsibility. How many of us parents have redoubled our instruction as the dangers and license about us have doubled? This is the first thing for us to do. And in God's name I adjure you to take up this duty."

"We should do this not merely in order to escape from the dangers and from sin, but even more in order to outgrow and strengthen every good and sacred thing in life."

"There is and there ought to be a deep affinity between the pure passion of youthful lovers and the enthusiasm for God of young Christians. Love—and I mean the pure, passionate love of youthful lovers—divines in the one beloved the mystic beauty and glory of humanity. Close to that is the ardent religious love which reveals the mystic beauty and glory of God. True love, whether for one's mate or for Jesus, lover of my soul, ripens and ennobles our nature, calls us forth the hidden stores of tenderness and strength, and overcoming the selfishness of youth by the passion of self-surrender."

"No heart is pure that is not passionate. No virtue is safe that is not enthusiastic. We must not be frightened away from the God-intended use and sacredness of the great human passions just because these passions are often abused and degraded. If the church does not win its youth for the love of God while they are in the years and in the mood of true-hearted, passionate lovers, it probably will never win them at all. If it won, they are liable to be half-hearted, self-indulgent Christians."

HUSBAND WAS CRUEL TO HER, DIVORCEE CLAIMS

Physical assault and failure to provide for her support were the charges which secured a divorce for Sadie Kohl from her husband, Harry Kohl, when the case was called before Judge A. M. Spencer in municipal court. Her maiden name, Sadie Rohm, was restored and she was given the household furniture now in her possession and $65 for court fees. Kohl did not contest the suit and divorce was granted by default.

More than 500,000 boys and girls are now enrolled in the farm club work of the Department of Agriculture.

Radio Listeners Still Like Jazz

Survey Shows Syncopated Music Is More Popular Than Classical Numbers

There has been a clever barrage of publicity lately about how the radio public is changing its attitude from the jazz craze of last year to a demand for classical music. Percentages have been quoted to prove that jazz is on the wane and that the American people are at last coming to see the beauty of the old masters.

This is probably true if one cares to admit that up to now the American public could not appreciate good music. Any newspaper reporter can demonstrate how the same set of figures can be made to prove, absolutely, directly opposite statements. Wherever the truth lies does not really matter anyway.

One station engaged in radio broadcasting has found that the radio public is as enthusiastic over jazz as ever. This station is WTAM, at Cleveland, operated by the Willard Storage Battery company.

WTAM broadcasts a wealth of both jazz and classical music every week, including the rebroadcasting of the extremely high class concerta from WPAF at New York. On the schedule at WTAM is a night devoted entirely to very high class music, played by excellent musicians. Another night is exclusively jazz by musicians no less talented. A third night includes both types of music. The dinner concerts are also balanced. One

SPECIAL PAPER FOR PUBLICITY

Extra Large Lawrentian to Be Sent to Preparatory Schools of Territory

A special issue of the Lawrentian, college weekly, is planned for this week. The number, about twice the usual size, will be sent to all juniors and seniors in the high schools of Wisconsin and adjacent states as a publicity measure. The circulation is estimated at about 15,000 for this issue.

The twenty pages will contain resumes of football and basketball seasons, the outlook for track, articles on the academic departments, scholarship records, and other items of college interest. The faculty is working in conjunction with the regular staff in its publication.

On the week following, Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary and professional fraternity for men in journalism, will issue the paper. This number will be formal in size and material but all the work will be done by Pi Delta Epsilon members rather than by the regular staff.

night of dance music alternating with a night of classical music.

With this evenly balanced offering WTAM receives mail, telegrams and phone calls from the exclusive jazz night alone totaling about 60 per cent of the entire volume for the week. Other jazz programs bring in additional 25 per cent, leaving 15 per cent of the listenership favoring the classical programs. Draw your own conclusions.

5 BUILDINGS IN NEENAH DAMAGED BY FIRE SUNDAY

Mayor Discovers Blaze Which Spread Rapidly to Nearby
Wooden Structures

Neenah—A fire which threatened the west end of West Wisconsin-ave. started shortly before 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon damaging five wooden structures. The cause of the fire is not known.

Mayor George Sande discovered the fire while working in his office on North Church-st. He smelled smoke and, looking out his window, saw a blaze in the rear of the Thurmanson blacksmith shop, in a wooden part of the building used by Mr. Thurmanson as a vulcanizing shop. Mayor Sande immediately called the fire department but the flames had spread to the rear of the Hero Furnace Co. office, the Twin City Auto Trimming Co., and the H. C. Jaspersen building. Five wooden two-story buildings in that block caught fire and the strong west wind put other buildings in the vicinity in great danger. Burning embers were carried into the next block where a blaze was started on the roof of the old roller rink building and in the woodwork around one of the windows of the News Publishing Co. office.

WATER CAUSES DAMAGE
The damage was confined mostly to the rear ends of the buildings. The front, or store parts, were damaged by water from the eight streams kept upon them for an hour before the firemen had the fire under control.

The building in which the Hero Furnace Co. business was conducted by E. S. Seims was badly damaged, but the stock was mostly in the front of the building.

The flames completely destroyed the home of Roy Frakes, living upstairs. Frakes had no insurance. In the third building the Auto Trimming Co. suffered mostly by water although the entire rear end was completely destroyed. The stock was mostly in the front of the building which was untouched by flames. In the upper flat of this building the flames had worked through the walls and ceiling wrecking the place and destroying most of the household goods owned by William Henning. Mr. Henning also did not carry insurance.

The next building, with the exception of small portion of the rear did not catch fire as it was a tin covered structure with tin roof while the others were shingled. The State Marketing association occupied this building. The upper flat was occupied by the families of Harry Thurmanson and Julius Malchow who suffered some losses from water.

The fifth building to catch fire was owned by the Jaspersen feed store. Here the damage was on the roof which had caught fire but was checked by a stream turned on from the inside thus halting the flames before they had spread to the baled hay and shavings with which the building was filled. This loss is covered by insurance, as is the Thurmanson stock and building. A blaze was discovered on the roof of the Twin City Cleaners and Dyers, the sixth wooden building, but was extinguished before any damage resulted.

All but two of the buildings are owned by the Sherry estate whose office is in Milwaukee. The buildings, with the exception of the Thurmanson blacksmithshop are beyond repair.

The fire got such a start that the local department could not halt it so the Menasha department and volunteers were called and gave great assistance as did the department from the Neenah paper mill and the Bergstrom Paper Co.

The fire destroyed six smaller sheds and outhouses in the rear of the main building.

During the fire, Kendrick Babette who was assisting in removing household goods from the building was overcome with smoke and had to be carried out into the fresh air.

Irvine Stipp, one of the volunteers, was cut about the head by falling timber which struck him while he was holding a hose. Several stitches were required to close the wound.

Mayor Sande has ordered a thorough investigation of the cause of Sunday afternoon's fire. While from all appearances it looked as though the fire started in the Thurmanson building, the mayor is inclined to think its origin was in an adjoining building and spread to the Thurmanson building.

The officer hurried to the place and through the window saw the two men at work on the safe with a sledge hammer. ## MAY RID NEENAH OF FIRE TRAPS

Sunday's Fire Leads Officials to Consider Condemning of Buildings

Neenah—An effort is to be made by the city council to have all the wooden structures in the business district condemned and taken down as a preventative of further damages by fire. Sunday afternoon's fire on West Wisconsin-ave among a whole block of wooden structures has prompted the city officials to start this action.

Sparks from the burning buildings were blown by the high wind onto the old roller rink building which is located directly behind one of the principal business blocks, starting a blaze on the roof and had this building, which is nearly a block long and nothing but a wooden shell, started to blaze, little hope would have been had for the saving of the business block.

The matter will be taken-up at a special meeting of committees during the present week.

Modern Wife
Wants Motto
"Save Time"

There will be no union fine for housewives speeding up the kitchen work.

Indeed, housewives all over the country are being encouraged to do their work more quickly and efficiently in order to "come out of the kitchen" earlier in the day. Since extra steps for a spoon or holder means just that much more time and mileage, the Wisconsin department of home economics urges every housewife to arrange her kitchen equipment for greater convenience.

The grouping of kitchen equipment will save steps. For instance, since the frying pan, the dripping pans, and the teakettle are always used at the stove, the hooks for them should be near. Housewives also find it convenient to keep small quantities of salt, pepper, flour and sugar in shakers in the warming oven or on a shelf near the range. Hot pan holders and an alarm clock also belong to the kitchen equipment group. An alarm clock proves to be very convenient for keeping track of the time required to bake bread and other foods. As the alarm may be heard in other parts of the house, the housewife need not return to the kitchen to remove the food from the oven until the alarm sounds.

GROUT WORKING TOOLS

Near the work table may be kept the utensils needed for cooking, such as egg beaters, wooden spoons, and measuring cups. If a kitchen cabinet is not used, shelves may be arranged above the work table and the food may be kept in labeled glass jars. If the housewife finds herself using certain utensils in one part of the room more than in another part, it is a sign that rearrangements are necessary.

The dishwashing equipment will need to be near the sink. It is very convenient to have placed directly over the sink, a sink cabinet in which the dishwashing and cleaning supplies may be kept. The dish pans are usually kept in the cupboard or on hooks under the sink.

PAPER SAVES STEPS

A kitchen bulletin board is also a convenient addition to the kitchen. It may be made quite easily by covering a thin piece of soft wood about 12x18 inches with a piece of colored paper and framing it. Bills, plans for the week, grocery lists and even recipes to be used may be tacked here with small thumb tacks. Such tacks may be purchased at an art store for a small sum.

A drawer of paper in the kitchen helps make the housework easier. Greasy utensils may be cleaned more quickly if they are first wiped out with paper. When the vegetables are being prepared for dinner, the work table may be cleaned more easily after the process if the table has been protected by a clean paper. When the task is completed, the garbage may be rolled up in the paper and placed in the can. Paper plates may be used to put cake on when it is to be fed.

MACK SENNETT ADDS NAME OF ALICE DAY TO LIST OF WELL KNOWN STARS

BY A. H. FREDERICK

Hollywood—Black Sennett has found a new girl star and a new type of comedy.

Only once before in all motion picture history has this master comedy producer starred a girl. She was Mable Normand, now in retirement and undecided about a screen return.

His new star is Alice Day, diminutive, shy and sweet.

"There is no limit to Miss Day's possibilities," says Sennett. "Either in dramatic parts or comedy roles, she will go far. Appeal, looks, character, will soon rate her among the screen's leading luminaries."

Sennett has starred many men: Charlie and Syd Chaplin, Charlie Murray, Ben Turpin, Ford Sterling and others too numerous to mention.

Also many girls destined for stardom have received their initial engagements upon his lot: Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels, Louise Fazenda, Marie Prevost and Mabel Normand. But only the latter was ever starred by him, until the advent of Alice Day.

NEW COMEDY

With the acquisition of Miss Day, Sennett decided upon production of a new type of comedy in addition to those for which he is famous.

Slapsticks, burlesque, impossible makeups, long chases—the earmarks of Sennett's past product—are to be eschewed unless strictly inherent in the story. The latter is to predominate, centering around a love interest, and unraveling in approved dramatic fashion but in comedy vein.

The story of Miss Day's elevation to stardom is, in modified form, a new Betty Bronson episode.

One day, almost entirely unknown, she was chosen for a part with possibilities—in Norma Talmadge's "Secrets." From there she went to the Sennett lot, and was given a bit which consisted of doing no more than walking on and handing a paper to a more important character.

DISCOVERED

In the projection room, Sennett, viewing the film, exclaimed: "Who is that?" And added, "If she can do bigger parts than that, I'm going to star her."

The picture which was to test Miss Day's possibilities is "Love and Kisses," a two-reel story to be released.

It satisfied Sennett fully, and so the name of Alice Day was added to the list of potential stars.

The story was written for Miss Day, and with an eye upon the new type of comedy Sennett believes in demand.

Thus a wide range of test is given the star. First she is our American equivalent of a slave. From this she graduates into finery and ruffles. In both she demonstrates her appeal. She is pretty and cute and, as Sennett declares, "the type of girl men want to marry, which, after all, is the one they like best and longest."

TELEGRAM FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

We are in great trouble, Alice. I had suddenly this morning. No one here to make arrangements. Karl overcome with grief. Will meet you at the train in the morning.

LESLEIE

Arrived here this morning to find Leslie and her mother in great trouble.

Alice Whitney committed suicide on about an hour before we arrived. Leslie was on her way to meet us when her mother caught her at the market where she had told the butler she was going to stop. Miss Ellington and I went directly to the Hamilton house and are doing everything we can.

Mr. Whitney prostrated with grief, and everyone else so completely surprised and sorrow stricken they do not know what to do. Leslie tells me she is to meet you in the morning. Meanwhile I'll do what I can.

SALLY ATHERTON

Telegram From Zoe Ellington to Ruth Burke

Arrived here to find a grief stricken household. Mrs. Alice Whitney committed suicide this morning. Luckily little Jack took to me immediately and I shall be able to relieve Mrs. Prescott of that care. Suggest you come over if possible.

ZOE ELLINGTON

Day-Letter From John Alden Prescott to Leslie Prescott

I cannot find words to tell you how sorry I am for you. I have been expecting, however, something of this kind, for I knew that no sane person could have acted as poor Alice has for some time back. You will forgive me for some time back. You will forgive me, I tell you that it is absolutely impossible for me to be with you for a day or two? Some very important business has come up in the Acme settlement which requires my individual attention at this time. Syd is coming in my place, dear. He said he thought I should come but when I explained to him the predicament I was in, and that if he did not go to you I would have to let you get along alone, like the good friend he is, he started immediately by airplane. Will write you all the reasons why I cannot come tonight. Can only tell you this much, that it would mean the loss of several thousand dollars to us if I do not stay here at this time. I shall worry about you every minute and you must know that I will come to you just as soon as I can. Lovingly, your husband, JACK

Swiss Baker Can Keep Bread Fresh For Two Years

Fully, Switzerland—Jean Matti, a baker of this village, claims to have discovered a method of keeping bread fresh for two years. After bread has been baked in the ordinary way, Matti merely puts it in again into an oven which has a temperature of 164 degrees Fahrenheit. Experts who have investigated Matti's bread say that specimens which he turned over to them 11 months ago are still fresh and edible.

Adventures
Of The Twins

MRS. CRACKNUTS' ROSE SHAWL

There was to be a party in the Land-of-Dear-Knows-Where.

A birthday party!

A birthday party for Mrs. Blossom Bunn!

But although every Tom, Dick and Harry and every Jane and Maty, knew all about it, Mrs. Bunn herself never knew a word.

Because it was to be a surprise and she wasn't to know a thing about it until the very day.

But you may be sure that business was good for Mister Peg Leg, the little peddler man. He and Nick and Nick were as busy as bees in a sugar barrel. And the way he was selling things almost made him jiggy with happiness.

"At last, my dear old Peg Leg, I shall not only be able to buy me a fine new peg leg, but maybe I'll have enough over to buy me another wooden leg and a couple of wooden arms. They might come in handy some time—you never can tell."

"Oh, don't forget your best Mister Peg Leg," laughed Nancy. "You might need a wooden head sometime, too."

"I have one," answered the little fellow merrily.

And then they all laughed again. Everybody was very happy.

Business was fine for two reasons. One reason was that everybody had to have something new to wear to the party.

The other reason was that everybody had to take Mrs. Bunn's present.

And Mister Peg Leg did have the nicest carrot perfumes at things like that as well as lettuce-leaf hair-kurchieys and beet pin cushions.

But everything wasn't all roses and daisies. There was trouble, too. And it was one of these affairs this story is about.

It's about the red and blue shawl that Mrs. Cracknuts bought to wear to the party and what happened to it.

Nancy and Nick and the little peddler man came to the grounds of the Cracknuts building which was called Maple Tree Flats and Munch Mouse took them up in the elevator and they all got out.

Tap, tap, tap, they went on Mrs. Cracknuts' own door to her apartment.

Mrs. Cracknuts answered it herself.

"Do you need anything today?" asked Mister Peg Leg.

"Well, I should say I do," cried the squirrel lady happily. "Come right in. I haven't a thing to wear to Mrs. Bunn's birthday party. It's been so long since I was out in society that I've let my clothes run down something scandalous. Have you something extra pretty?"

"Show her that blue silk shawl with the red roses on it," said Nancy. "You'd look like a queen in that. Mrs. Cracknuts."

So Mister Peg Leg undid his pack and brought out the blue silk shawl, which has a temperature of 164 degrees Fahrenheit. Experts who have investigated Matti's bread say that specimens which he turned over to them 11 months ago are still fresh and edible.

"Oh, how a daisy me!" cried Mrs. Cracknuts the minute she saw it. "I'll certainly have to have that. I hope it doesn't cost a million dollars."

"No, sir. I mean, no ma'am. It's a real bargain," said Peg Leg. (To Be Continued.)

"KAFICO" WILL RIVAL TEA AND COCKTAIL HOUR

New York—"The Kafico" is threatening to rival afternoon tea and the cocktail hour as a fashionable social diversion for the hours between 4 and 6.

At a "Kafico" you feast on coffee, ketchup and pratinny.

If you have any Czechoslovakian ancestry, you probably know all about the kafico, otherwise you may need an explanation, and we'll let Blanche Yurka do the explaining since it was this popular actress who started the vogue in New York.

I merely introduced here what the Bohemian home has had for a custom for centuries," she begins. "They prefer coffee to tea, and they serve it as regularly as the English serve tea. With it they pass rich cream and whipped cream and the sweet breads and pastries for for which the Bohemian housewife is famous."

BAKER UNKNOWN

"Every Bohemian housewife makes the same pastries and breads with prune or poppyseed fillings that her grandmothers and great grandmothers before her have made, dedicating Saturday to this practice. The baker and delicatessen merchant are not on hand there with their easy adds, to house-keeping."

HER RECIPES

Here are her own recipes for two of the most popular pastries which are as common in Prague as the chicken sandwich or the chocolate éclair is here.

PRATINNY

One pound butter, 1 pound flour, 1 pound sugar, 1 pound ground almonds that have not been blanched, 1 teaspoon cinnamon and cloves. Mix the ingredients with the fingers as you would pie dough. Work into a thin crust and shape on iron baking molds. Bake from five to eight minutes. Afterwards dip them in powdered sugar to which vanilla has been added.

KOLACKY

Hard boil 12 eggs and use the yolks only. Work this into a paste and add 1 pound of butter, 1 pound of almonds finely chopped and blanched, 1 pound of flour, and moisten all this with one raw egg. Add of pinch of salt. Then roll out on a pastry board until it is about half an inch thick, cut with a biscuit cutter or make into doughnut shape. Bake about 15 minutes.

Household Hints

BE CAREFUL

Never buy second class canned goods. Use those you have tested and know to be reliable.

KEEP HOOKS LOW

See that hooks are placed low enough in the clothes closet so that children may hang up their own coats and wraps.

LETTERS HANDY

Have all your kitchen containers lettered so that you do not have to handle more than the one wanted when you go for anything. And keep the covers on them when they are not in use.

A SHOE TREE

A corner stool makes good substitute for a shoe-tree.

GREEN PEPPERS

Sliced green peppers make a pleasant change from onions, or mushrooms for cooking with beefsteak.

USE CHEAP SPOONS

Never use silver spoons for scraping a kettle. Have cheap ones that will not be scratched and are used only in the kitchen.

SELECT POTATOES

When baking potatoes, select those of uniform size so they will all be done at the same time.

USE POTATOES

Use the little bits of potatoes that are too small for the table by boiling, mashing, and adding to the dough for bread or doughnuts. The proportion is two-fifths as much potato as flour.

MEDERIA LINEN
EMBROIDERED IN NEW FACTORIES

Maderia embroidery is always more or less fashionable. We are accustomed to seeing it on tea napkins, tray cloths, doilies, doile sets, and small table cloths, where its delicacy of design and appearance of clean freshness, coupled with its remarkable reasonableness of price, never fail to recommend itself to the housewife.

We are so used to hearing that Maderia embroidery is made "by hand," that we are surprised to learn that, while this is true, it is done in factories for the most part. We picture in fancy the primitive women stitching away at the endless scrolls and stems, sitting crunched on the ground before their huts or tents—or whatever the domestic architecture may be in the land where Maderia embroidery is done. Thus does romance give way before the march of industrialism!

INDUSTRY A LARGE ONE

The center of the industry is in Funchal, capital of the Maderia Islands, off the west coast of Africa, where it is said that there are about 50,000 women who make their living by embroidering. Until recently at least, whatever the conditions may be today, they did this work under conditions that would seem very strange to us here in America, plying their needles incessantly through all the hours of daylight, and at a very poor rate of pay.

Several new factories recently have been completed, however, and all are kept working at top speed. Altogether there are about 35 factories engaged in this business, of which something like half are under the control of Syro & Sym. Americans. Before the war the Germans controlled the trade.

There are two ways in which the product of the workers is purchased by the United States. It is either bought outright from a local supply concern, or an agent purchases the trade.

BULK COMES TO US

By far the greater proportion of the output finds its way to the United States, where the demand seems to be increasing rather than falling off. However, large quantities also are sent regularly to Great Britain and to France.

The making of embroidery by hand was first started on a commercial basis about the year 1850, but did not achieve any actual importance until the first American firm opened in Funchal in 1902. Sometimes in the cheaper grades it will be found that the edge of the work has been done by machinery. By looking closely it is very easy to detect the difference. In true Maderia embroidery, the pattern is usually placed in one corner of the cloth and the edge is scalloped.

Here is the way to glistening teeth that dentists now advise

It removes that dingy film from your teeth. It clears cloudy teeth. Start beautifying your teeth today—why wait?

MODERN science now tells us how to clean and brighten dingy teeth. A new way widely urged by leading dentists of the world. Different in formula, action and effect, it does what no other method has yet attained—removes and combats, without harsh grit, the dangerous film that covers teeth and which old type dentifrices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel that film. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth you envy in others. If you combat that film your teeth will quickly glisten in a way that will delight you. Ask your druggist for a tube of Pepsodent. Results will amaze you.

The great enemy of teeth. Film is the great enemy of tooth beauty. And a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of pyorrhea and most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film. Mail the coupon now. Don't expect the same results from old type dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

Ball Pounded Lobsided In First 2 Games For Twin City's New League Team

Chicago Takes Opener in Ten Innings and Pails Win Sunday's Tilt

In a pair of ball games typical in every way of opening battles, the Menasha-Neenah Pails of the Wisconsin State League split even with Niesen's Famous Chicago crew on Saturday and Sunday at Menasha. Chicago copped an extra-inning 14 to 13 decision in the first tilt and Menasha finished on the long end of a 20 to 1 score on Sunday. A crowd of about 700 witnessed the Saturday game and almost 2,500 cash customers were on hand Sunday.

Both games started out well but ended in routs with ball after ball sailing into outfield or over the fence. The Pails battered three Chicago pitchers for 37 safe blows in the two games, while the visitors chalked up 25 on three Menasha hurlers. Errors totaled 19 with 4 in a row almost losing the first game in the ninth for Chicago and forcing the tired athletes to go an extra inning. Home runs in both tilts reached 15, with 9 for the final game. Cavanaugh and Kuybel of Chicago and Muench, Menasha, each counted two, and Corey, Menasha's slugging ace, garnered three.

All of the Menasha pitchers looked good for a few innings, but tired quickly. The Pails tried out four infielders, five outfielders, three catchers and three hurlers. Meyers, Sander and Jansen, the three unms handled the work well, though Casey came in for his usual share of boos Meyers' decisions were the best seen in Menasha for some time.

MENASHA FIRST

Menasha started the scoring in the first inning of the opener when Zielinski, home boy, shot a double into center and Corey, the Pail hitting star, sent another against the top of the fence. Zielinski's walk, singles by Corey and Worden a force out by Capt. Joey Muench and Cissa's double gave Menasha two in the fourth, but Chicago came back with five runs in the fifth when the Niesen boys got to Macowley for four hits including a homer by Cavanaugh, and a base on balls. Worden's error helped the Chicago in the rally.

Menasha started the sixth with four more. Doubles by Pitcher Macowley and Laabs, a new catcher, and a four-baser by Muench did most of the wrecking. Chicago came back with two and Menasha took another on doubles by Worden and Cissa to tie the score at 9 all in the seventh. In the ninth home runs by Aaron, Kuybel and an error on Cissa gave Chicago three runs and put the game on ice but four errors in a row tied it again. With three on and none down as a result of a walk and two errors, "Dutch" Sylvester, hitting for Laabs, dropped a hit on the first base line and the pitcher's throw pulled the Chicago first sacker off the bar. A five-minute quarrel took place before the Chicago crew could be convinced that the decision was correct and during that time Umpire Casey nearly came to blows with a Niesenite. Prompt interference prevented what looked like a fist battle. A homerun by Pitcher Blackburn, a walk, an error on Wurth and a single by Chick Harley, gave the Niesens two runs in the tenth and the best Menasha could do was to score one on Corey's homer, giving Chicago, the first game.

Chicago lined up with Hurley, centerfield; Aaron, third base; Harley, leftfield; Mokate, right field; Knyble, shortstop; Weiss, first base; Cavanaugh, second base; Dehnis, catcher; Grey and Blackburn, pitchers. Menasha played Wurth, second base; Leopold, first base; Zielinski, third base; Corey, left field; Worden, rightfield; Moore, Laabs and Handy, catchers; Macowley, pitcher; Sylvester batted for Handy in ninth and Muldowney for Macowley in the 10th.

Menasha started the second game with three runs when Muench doubled to the left field fence with the bases loaded. Sylvester's homerun drove over the rightfield fence scored three more for the Pails in the third, but the fifth inning brought the fireworks. Three singles, a double and three home runs drives by Chick Harley, Cavanaugh and Standard, netted Chicago eight runs. Errors by Pitcher Llewellyn and Capt. Muench aided the visitors. Three singles, a double by Sylvester and home runs by Corey and Zielinski, aided the Pails. A field returned five runs to the Menasha side of the ledger. After Chicago had garnered two more in the seventh on a walk and a homer by Pitcher Hoffman, Menasha broke loose and scored six in the seventh and two in the eighth to win by seven tally. Chicago was unable to score in the eighth and ninth, when Ray Friday called in to relieve Llewellyn held the Windy city boys hitless. The Pails' seventh inning rally was featured by circuit clubs by Corey's second in two innings—and Capt. Muench, and "Dutch" Sylvester's fifth straight hit. Cissa pounded a homer over the right field wall in the eighth.

The Menasha lineup put Wurth and Cissa at second base; Leopold, first base; Zielinski, third base; Corey, centerfield; Sylvester, leftfield; Muench, shortstop; Muldowney, rightfield; Moore and Laabs, catchers; Llewellyn and Friday, pitchers. Chicago played the same team as on Saturday with Hoffman, Blackburn and Harley and Standard as the battery.

Sox Fans Put Cleveland Back On Top Of A. L. Heap

New York—An echo from turbulent baseball days of the past reverberated in the Chicago American league ball park Sunday when 44,000 fans swarmed on the field in the ninth inning of a game between the White Sox and Indians.

In the foretelling of the game to Cleveland, 9 to 0 after police had been unable to clear the field. Speaker's team was restored to the pace making position, the champion Senators having made possible the switch through their defeat at the hands of the Yanks, 3 to 2.

The New York Giants lengthened their advantage in the National league at the expense of the Phillies, who were unable to turn back the pitching of Bentley for bunched hits after the first frame.

The Chicago Cubs pulled up a full game on the second place Reds, when defeated a crippled Cincinnati team in a ninth inning rally, 6 to 5.

A sensational pitching performance by Rube Marquard gave the much beaten Boston Braves a shutout victory over the Robins 3 to 0.

Pittsburg prevented the Braves from vacating the cellar however, by subduing the Cardinals 6 to 1, hitting Haines and Stuart hard while Babe Adams was putting in a big day on the mound for the visitors.

Ben Paschal again came to the rescue of the Yanks with a home run in the ninth which noded out the Senators, but the edge of the victory was somewhat dulled by an accident to the promising young outfielder, Earl Combs, who was put on the shelf by a muscle strain.

George Sisler ran his consecutive game hitting streak to 12 by inserting two of many base blows under which the Detroit Tigers sank to their fifth straight defeat, 5 to 4. The days harvest tied Sisler with Red Wings of Detroit for fourth place at .494 in the American league batting average race.

4 STATES IN U. W. PREP TRACK MEET

McGinnis, Schwarze, McAndrews to Go Through Stuff for Athletes of 17 Schools

Madison—High school athletes from four states will compete at the second annual Mid-West Relay carnival to be held at the University of Wisconsin stadium May 2. Menominee, Mich., is the latest entry, bringing the total number of schools entered to 17. The other states represented are Iowa, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Two of the big cities of the middle-west will be well represented. North Division high of Milwaukee is coming, making the total of Milwaukee schools four. Oak Park and Tilden high of Chicago are bringing strong teams to Madison next week. Libertyville, Ill. and Janesville are other new towns to enter. It is expected that the number of entries will swell to over 25, last year's number. A great many last-minute entries are expected by the committee in charge, due to late time trials.

Visiting athletes and spectators of the carnival will have an opportunity to see some of the greatest track stars of the nation in action next Saturday. Schwarze, McGinnis, and McAndrews, all of Wisconsin, are slated to perform special exhibition events. Schwarze is the new collied ate champion of the United States in the shot put. At the Kansas relay he heaved the ball 43 feet 10 1/2 inches for a new record.

McGinnis has outjumped most of the best high jumpers in the Big Ten including Russell of Chicago. The only thing which prevented McGinnis from taking first in the great inter-sectional meet at California was a lame ankle. Crippled as he was, he managed to hobble over the horizontal bar for a second place at 6 feet 2 inches.

McAndrews won the 100 yard dash over Barber of California in 2.3 seconds. He has beaten some of the fastest men in the country including Layden of Notre Dame and Whitman of Michigan. Wisconsin's two mile relay team will meet the freshman team in another special event.

SEYMOUR MAN IS INJURED BY AUTO AS HE FIXES TIRE

Julius Damon Seriously Hurt While Conveying Pupils Home from School

Special to Post-Crescent
Seymour—Julius Damon, janitor of the high school here, was painfully hurt about 11 o'clock Saturday night when struck by an automobile while returning home from Oshkosh with students who took part in a high school music contest there. He is confined to his bed at his home here with body bruises and lacerations but no bones were broken.

Mr. Damon drove one of the three automobiles containing pupils who took part in a high school music contest. The cars had reached a point about half a mile north of Appleton on highway 47 when a tire of the Damon machine was punctured. Mr. Damon alighted to replace the tire and as he did so a large automobile coming from the opposite direction struck him and threw him against his own machine.

Prof. Paulson of the high school, who was driving one of the cars, took the injured man back to Appleton for medical aid and then conveyed him to his home.

WIN CONTEST

In the league declamatory and oratorical contest at Seymour high school Friday evening, Miss Helen O'Brien, of Denmark, with the selection "Jane, won first place in declamations, and Raymond Stewart, Shiocton, with the subject, "Supporter of Civilization," was first in oratory.

Second places were won by Miss Lucille Droeger, Seymour, with "Humor," and Francis O'Leary, Denmark, with "The Christ of the Andes." Schools represented were Seymour, Denmark, Pulaski and Shiocton. The judges were Miss Irene Arnett, Dr. A. A. Trever and H. R. Steiner.

USE THREE LANGUAGES IN CHURCH SERVICES

The use of three different languages on the evening's program was the feature of services at the Oneida Methodist church Sunday evening. The Appleton Y. M. C. A. gospel team conducted the services. Talks were given in Oneida, Indian language, Japanese and English.

W. E. Smith gave the principal talk of the evening and George F. Werner, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. gave a talk and led the singing. Messrs. Shioji and Hawakaya, Japanese students at Lawrence college, sang the Japanese national anthem in their native language and gave talks of greeting, which they later translated into English. They also played a number of mandolin and harmonica and piano duets. The concluding numbers on the program were a group of Indian hymns sung in the Oneida tongue by several old Oneida chiefs and a prayer in the Indian tongue.

A boys gospel team of the local association has been invited to take charge of the services at the Oneida church in May.

Ancient Earrings Now In Height of Fashion

By Associated Press
Dresden—Now is the time for women who desire to be in fashion to bring out their earrings from the time of Napoleon I. Fortunate is the woman who has among her belongings earrings dating back 100 years or more.

Dame Fashion prescribes an ear dress made up of rather long golden chains fastened into the ear and ending in a beautiful pearl or precious stone. Some of these ear gears extend down to the seam of the low-neck cut and are made up of a series of precious stones. Contrasts of color, by which attention of the various stones making up the hanging ear decoration, are as much in fashion now as they were before the last time earrings were in vogue, some 25 years ago.

More than 100 Rotarians and their wives from Appleton and Neenah Rotary clubs expected to assemble here Tuesday morning with their "rattling good" cars to drive to the Tenth district conference in Madison. Eighty Appleton people have signified they will make the trip, and twenty from the recently organized Neenah club, but probably several more members from each club will be on hand at 6:15 Tuesday morning ready to start.

A regular meeting of the Appleton club will be held at 12:15 Tuesday for members who are unable to make the journey. Dr. R. C. Mullenix of Lawrence college has arranged a program for the stay-at-homes.

WAUPACA POLICE FIND STOLEN CAR

Machine Abandoned Wednesday Night Belonged to Amherst Junction Man

Special to the Post-Crescent
Waupaca—An abandoned car found in front of the A. M. Hanson machinery hall Saturday proved to be that of Morris Gunderson of Amherst Junction. The car, a Ford sedan, had stood where found since Wednesday night when it disappeared from the owner after a dance in the village of Amherst Junction. Registration of the car was not on record here and the owner was traced by Officer Hewitt. It is thought that young men attending the dance were responsible for the disappearance.

Miss Emma Arnold of Minneapolis, has presented the Waupaca public schools with a Lincoln memorial tablet. This tablet is given in memory of her father, Leonard Arnold, a pioneer resident of Waupaca, whose children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren number many and have received most of their education in the Waupaca schools. The tablet is a bas-relief of Lincoln copied from his death mask made by an old friend of the deceased, and carved on pure Italian marble. The bust is framed by a carved wreath and underneath appears the immortal "Gettysburg address" in high relief. The board of education hopes to have this tablet here in time for the commencement week when appropriate exercises will be held with as many as possible of Mr. Arnold's descendants in attendance.

Carl Van Wurden, wrestler of Oshkosh, will meet Mat Madsen, the Colorado cowboy, at the local armory, Tuesday night, April 23. The match will be a no time limit affair, best two out of three falls. Promoters state there can be no draw such as resulted in the last match when Van Wurden and Callahan went two hours to a draw. Madsen, who won from Hagensick here three weeks ago, is still undefeated in his class. Van Wurden must win every match from now to June 15 to qualify for a chance at the national title, but is meeting a wonderful grappler here Tuesday night. A "tin can fight" will be furnished as the preliminary end to the entertainment. It is something new and novel. Instead of the management admitting ladies free a small fee is to be charged at this bout. George Murray will referee as usual and Jay Cornwall will be timekeeper.

A meeting of the home department of the Methodist Sunday school will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors.

The Womens Christian Temperance union will meet Tuesday afternoon at the home of L. F. Hoaglin, with Mrs. Ross as leader.

Wednesday, April 23, the annual business meeting of the Baptist church will be held in the church parlors.

The American Ladies Aid society of Our Savior church will meet with Mrs. A. M. Pederson, Wednesday afternoon, April 23.
